Dear Mr. Arnold:

Opinions:

My primary task was to calculate the present cash value of economic damages for Mr. Tommy Le. This opinion is set forth in my Economic Impact Report, attached as Exhibit "A". My second task was to frame, in economic terms, the range a jury should use in valuing the loss to the family of Mr. Le's society, companionship, etc. This opinion is set forth in my Loss of Human Value of Life Report attached as Exhibit "B". This economist reserves the right to amend this opinion based upon more current or relevant data and evidence admitted at the time of trial.

1. Data Considered:

Re: Estate of Tommy Le, et al. v. King County, et al.

Dear Mr. Arnold:

I have examined the information given to Robert W. Johnson & Associates regarding Mr. Tommy Le and his heirs' pecuniary (financial support, etc.) losses. Based on this data, I have calculated the present cash value of the pecuniary economic loss using generally accepted statistical techniques and econometric methods of analysis. My opinion on this matter is set forth below. This economic analysis does not include any possible damages for Mr. Le's heirs' non-economic damages.

This economic loss evaluation presumes several economic relationships regarding inflation, wages and wage growths. These relationships were empirically determined based on over 50 years of post-World War II economic data (please see the discussion of economic assumptions). Interest rates are those that are currently available.

This economist reserves the right to amend this opinion based upon more current or relevant data and evidence admitted at the time of trial.

PRESENT VALUE CALCULATION

This report quantifies the economic damages of this case. It does not include non-economic (general) damages.

The lost wages and earning capacity are assumed to increase in the future. The wage growth rates used in this report were determined from post-war (1950 - 2017) U.S. economic data and are illustrated in the attached chart. The economic data for the period of 1950 - 1963 has been adjusted to incorporate post 1963 data set changes. Future lost wages and earning capacity are also assumed to be adjusted to present value based on current interest rates. The interest rates used in this report are current yields on U.S. Treasury Securities, also illustrated in an attached chart.

In cases where the subject's wage growth is assumed to track the national average and he/she has no expected job changes, the column showing his/her wages will remain constant after the present year. This is correct. Wage growth, inflation, and interest rates are all accounted for in the present value process.

Similar to the present value process for lost wages and earning capacity, anticipated future expenses and medical costs are also assumed to increase in the future. The inflation rates used in this report were determined from post-war (1950 - 2017) U.S. economic data and are illustrated in the attached chart. Future expenses and medical costs are also assumed to be adjusted to present value based on current interest rates.

Re: Estate of Tommy Le, et al. v. King County, et al.

Dear Mr. Arnold:

I have reviewed the information that was given to Robert W. Johnson & Associates regarding the death of Mr. Tommy Le. I have made an extensive review of the relevant economic literature regarding the economic guidelines on the human value of life. My opinion, based on using generally accepted methods of economic analysis relied upon by economists in this field, is set forth below.

It is my opinion that the range a jury should use in valuing the loss to the family of his society, companionship, etc., is from $3,700,000 to a midpoint of $13,600,000. This constitutes a framework for measuring the loss to the survivors. It is assumed that the quality of the relationship between Mr. Le and his parents, Hoai Le and Dieu Le, at least meets the minimum standards of the trier of fact. For purposes of this report, the concept is referred to as the loss of human value of life.

If we can be of further assistance, please call either of us.

Very truly yours,

Robert W. Johnson

HUMAN VALUE OF LIFE ECONOMIC IMPACT REPORT
Re: Estate of Tommy Le, et al. v. King County, et al.

Name: Mr. Tommy Le

Date of birth: November 21, 1996

Age at date of death: 20

Gender: Male

Date of death: June 14, 2017

Date of valuation: December 3, 2018

Survivors: Hoai Le – Father

Cannon, et al. that are pertinent to this case include the following: “The loss of enjoyment of life experienced and that with reasonable probability will be experienced in the future; The mental, physical, emotional pain and suffering experienced and that with reasonable probability will be experienced in the future; Deprivation of Life.”¹

HUMAN VALUE OF LIFE ECONOMIC IMPACT REPORT
Re: Estate of Tommy Le, et al. v. King County, et al.

DISCUSSION

The field of economics has a long history of applying the analytical techniques and methodologies of statistical and economic analysis in attempting to determine the value of human life. One of the earliest economic methodologies, appearing in 1927², was called Human Capital. This methodology basically stated the total value of life is equivalent to the amount of money you make. Yet economists have long recognized that this definition of the total value of human life is inadequate and incomplete. As stated in Federal Agency Valuations of Human Life,

"Human life has value not simply because of the ability of humans to produce goods that have market values (a function that does permit some measure of human life, i.e., Human Capital) but also because life generates additional value less susceptible to quantification. Within this category lie such factors as community, friendship..."³.

A simple attempt to apply this methodology to plaintiffs such as homemakers, retirees and children quickly and clearly demonstrates the significant shortcomings in this methodology.

To calculate the dollar value society places on the non-wage-loss/non-financial portion of life, or in economic parlance, the societal intangible human value of life, economists in 1968 started to use the economic methodology called Willingness-to-Pay⁴. The Willingness-to-Pay (WTP) methodology is designed to provide a statistically relevant measure of how much, in dollar terms, this society values life. It is basically how much people are willing to pay (or willing to give up in dollars) to avoid an increase in the risk of death. The summing of this measure across all people provides an estimate, to a reasonable degree of economic certainty, of the intangible human value of life. WTP estimates are primarily derived from statistical analysis of labor markets or by using sophisticated consumer surveys.

Simply put, the WTP is an econometric way of placing a dollar-value on an intangible (the human value of life) for which there is no replacement cost. For this report the loss of care, companionship, society, etc. is called the loss of the intangible human-value-of life.

HUMAN VALUE OF LIFE ECONOMIC IMPACT REPORT

Re: Estate of Tommy Le, et al. v. King County, et al.

A simple example of the WTP economic methodology can be illustrated with the following scenario. Let us assume there is a toxin in a town of 20,000 people causing a fatality rate of 3 people per 20,000. The toxin can be reduced to the point where the fatality rate is only 1 person out of 20,000, thus saving 2 lives. The townspeople are asked, "How much are they willing to pay to save these two lives?" It is important to note that the townspeople recognize there is no way of knowing in advance whose lives are going to be saved. It could be the local vagrant bum, an infant, spouse, or the local version of Dr. Jonas Salk. All that remains is the intangible human value of life. Although there was some variation, the average amount each citizen was willing to pay was $200. Consequently, since the average citizen was willing to pay $200 for this reduction in the rate of death, then the total Willingness-to-Pay would be $4,000,000 and the intangible human value of life per person saved was $2,000,000.

This economic methodology (WTP) has in the past 20+ years been the subject of rigorous critical analysis and validation. The Willingness-to-Pay methodology has generated over 66 studies, journal articles, reports, etc., by economists. As a result of such thorough and extensive analysis, the Willingness-to-Pay economic methodology has become the recognized standard for quantifying the loss of care, comfort, society, consortium, etc. - the intangible human value of life.

Among the many published studies, two prominent analyses on the Human Value of Life are (1) "The Plausible Range for the Value of Life", by Dr. T. Miller⁵ and (2) "The Value of Life: Estimates with Risks by Occupation and Industry", by Dr. W. Kip Viscusi⁶. In the Miller study, which represents his critical analysis of over 66 different analyses (by other economists) of the Human Value of Life, he deemed 47 as sound. These 47 qualifying studies yielded a statistical floor value of $2,200,000 (in 1988 dollars). In the Viscusi study, the authors' empirical analysis of Bureau of Labor Statistics data yielded a value of life of $8,900,000 (in 1997 dollars).

Thus, after deducting for the Human Capital component and converting to before tax dollars, the appropriate range for the intangible Human Value of Life is from a low of $1,800,000 in 1988 dollars to a mid-point of $8,900,000, in 1997 dollars. When converted (using the Consumer Price Index) into 2017 dollars, the range is from $3,700,000 to $13,600,000.
